Angola Project Update:
Testing Of Alluvial Diamond Mining Machinery Has Commenced

New Millennium Resources NL (NML), the international diamond mining and exploration company with projects in Angola and Greenland, today announces that testing of equipment has begun on its C9 license area in Angola.

As part of the testing process gravels from the concession have run through the machinery and identified a small amount of stones believed to be rough diamonds.

These discoveries are yet to be qualified and quantified by a properly certified authority, which has been delayed due to seasonal torrential rains in the area that makes site access difficult.

The Company aims to bring a qualified geologist onto the site at the earliest possible opportunity to proceed to classify these stones and further explore the area.

The mining equipment is on site and fully commissioned for pre-production. Further significant progress towards production however cannot proceed until there is a break in the heavy seasonal rains in the locality. Further announcements will be made in due course as appropriate.
